Thoughtworks (NASDAQ: TWKS), a global technology consultancy that integrates strategy, design and engineering, today announced a client, Eli Senerman, vice president of Walmart Tech Chile, and an employee Fausto de la Torre, head of Enterprise Modernization, Platforms and Cloud of Thoughtworks Europe have been named to the HITEC 50 list. Hispanic Technology Executive Council (HITEC) is one of the most influential and notable organizations for Hispanic professionals in the technology industry.

HITEC 50 celebrates the 50 most influential and notable Hispanic executives and entrepreneurs in the technology industry across Latin America, Spain and Portugal. Leaders are selected based on their accomplishments in the technology industry and for their contributions to developing the next generation of Hispanic technology leaders.

Fifty percent of this year's awardees are women and 54 percent are first-time HITEC 50 awardees. This year's HITEC 50 recognizes leaders from Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Mexico, Peru, Spain, USA and Venezuela.

"Our future is bright, global and diverse!" said HITEC Chair Rosa Ramos Kwok. "This year's HITEC 50 awardees are outstanding leaders in Technology who are making a difference every day. I applaud their accomplishment and look forward to their future contributions to the HITEC community and beyond."

"This is the most diverse and representative cohort ever in HITEC 50," said HITEC Awards Committee Chair Alvaro Celis. "These leaders are forging a path for future generations while making the region a better place for everyone."

"HITEC 50 represents a group of leaders who are creating an extraordinary impact on the world and inspiring the next generation of Hispanic tech executives," said Caroline Cintra, regional managing director, Thoughtworks Latin America. "So it's very fitting that Eli Senerman and Fausto de la Torre are being recognized for their achievements in technology innovation and championing diversity in their respective organizations and communities."

HITEC is the premier leadership development organization for Hispanic technology executives working to accelerate the power and impact of these technology leaders, achieving lasting equity from the classroom to the boardroom.
